

To our incredible, talented and special St. John Bosco children

Everyone at St. John Bosco School has missed having all of you together in our special school. The school has been quieter and its energetic beat has turned into a low murmur! As you know, we can't let everyone come back to school just yet because we need to make sure we all keep safe. If you are staying at home we are still putting ideas and work for you on Twitter and Purple Mash.

We love to hear and see you too, your pictures, letters and photo's have continued to cheer us all up. We have also loved talking to you and your families on the phone!

Myself and all of your amazing teachers are planning for all children to return in September, if the Government thinks it is safe for us to do so. We are planning a fun transition week where you will be with the teacher you left in March and you will be able to talk about your experiences while living through history. You will then move into your new class and work with your new teacher.

Just like our new sign for the school you have shown resilience and determination to be strong and continue to grow and flourish. What is happening in the world today is all of our story, we are living through history.

We are doing this with  hope for the future, so continue to look after each other and be kind to everyone.

I can't wait to see your smiley faces, skip into St. John Bosco School so my bucket can be filled up again!

Keep smiling, keep in touch!

Mrs Peart
